CODE OF CONDUCT

- The IBTI requires the highest standard of behaviour between students and staff, and a Christian submission to those in authority.
- Relationships among people of opposite gender are required to be as friendly as any other, but must not develop into any sort of courtship or special friendship during the academic year.
It is not allowed to enter dormitories of the opposite gender or be alone in secluded places.
- Private arrangements between students and Church members or leaders (whether social, financial, etc) must not be made without permission.
- Financial transactions such as opening of credit accounts, applying for loans etc. need to be authorized by the College first.
- Contraventions of any of the rules will have serious consequences which may even result in instant expulsion.
